Report of President Hugh Macgill and Executive Director Sandy Klebanoff

2008 was an exceptionally difficult year for the Foundation. IOLTA funds, which depend on a vigorous real estate market and robust interest rates, dropped from $20,764,522 to $8,254,577. So drastic a fall necessitated a 50% cut in 2009 grants to Connecticut's legal service providers. As a result, layoffs, furloughs, and salary and benefit cuts have significantly reduced the availability of legal services to our neediest residents. We thank the lawyers, staff, and board members of the legal services agencies whose work in these difficult times continues to provide much needed legal representation to low-income residents, to whose previous tribulations must now be added joblessness and homelessness.

Although we recognize the state's deepening fiscal crisis, it is clear that the future of legal services is grim without significant additional state funding. We hope the General Assembly will appropriate the yield from increases in several law-related fees to legal aid. With that help, it may be possible to maintain the structure and integrity of legal services programs in our state, if not to sustain their prior levels of service.

The Sixth Alternative Dispute Resolution Symposium, co-sponsored by Quinnipiac University School of Law and chaired by Harry Mazadoorian, brought together an outstanding group to discuss present issues affecting ADR, and the James W. Cooper Fellows continued their commitment to the Foundation's mission through increased financial support and involvement in Fellows' projects. The enthusiasm, hard work, and dedication of Peter Arakas and Bill Logue are an inspiration to all Fellows.

We thank David Bogan, Susan Bryson, Tim Hazen (former Secretary), Linda Kelly, Victor Muschell (former President), and Deborah Tedford for their years of service on the board and we look forward to working with new board members Gregory Davis, John Logan, Ralph Monaco, and Christine Owens Morgan. We also thank Chief Justice Rogers and the Judicial Branch and the leadership of the Connecticut Bar Association for their vital support of the Foundation and IOLTA.

Even with all that help and support, it remains the case again this year that any good the Foundation has accomplished would have been impossible without the tireless efforts and unwavering support of the Foundation's staff.

“Melissa”, 14 years old, had been abused and neglected and was suffering from Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) with a history of admissions to a children’s psychiatric hospital. She was in Department of Children and Families (DCF) care and her parents’ parental rights had been terminated. Her behaviors led to her placement in a juvenile detention center. While at the center, her emotional status deteriorated, and she tried to jump off a landing and made other attempts to injure herself. Detention staff placed her in isolation and on a special status where she was monitored by two staff members at all times. She was eventually taken to the local Emergency Room, where she was kept in a back room in shackles. After four days, she stabilized and was sent back to detention. DCF and the Court Support Services Division’s (CSSD) plan for Melissa was to keep her in detention for five weeks while she was on the waiting list for Riverview Children’s Hospital. The Juvenile Court Judge appointed CCA as Melissa’s Guardian-Ad-Litem, and CCA successfully moved the court to order DCF to place Melissa in an appropriate treatment setting within 24 hours. Melissa is currently at a residential center and is doing better.

After CCA brought this issue of detained children to a meeting with the DCF Commissioner and the CSSD, the two agencies agreed to create a protocol for the cases of detained children who are in psychiatric crisis. The agencies also agreed to speed up the placement process by sending out more than one referral at a time to prospective placements.

History of IOLTA Income and Grants

Greater Hartford Legal Aid, Inc. and New Haven Legal Assistance Association, Inc.

In December, rent-paying tenants in Connecticut found themselves thrown out on the street because their landlords had been foreclosed upon. The October bank bailout legislation contained language prohibiting Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac from evicting “bona fide tenants” following foreclosure upon their landlords, yet the giant mortgage companies ignored the law, and tenants knew nothing of its protection. Two legal aid attorneys in Hartford found the protective language in the law and their colleagues in New Haven carried the issue further, forcing Fannie Mae, and more recently, Freddie Mac, to offer leases to tenants, instead of the sidewalk. Together they achieved an astonishing triumph by forcing the two mortgage giants to comply with the law. The law alone did not protect the tenants. Legal aid attorneys, vigilant on behalf of their clients, were the watchdogs. As a result, thousands across the country will be allowed to stay in their homes.

Neighborhood property owners no longer need fear the impact of a boarded-up house next door on their property values. The entire state benefits, as keeping responsible tenants in foreclosed buildings will help stave off further urban blight in this severe recession.

But because IOLTA funding has dropped precipitously, one of the Hartford lawyers who helped engineer the triumph has already received a layoff notice, and more will follow.

“This is a time of significant challenge for the legal aid network. The weak economy that has caused the collapse of IOLTA revenues has also caused an increase in need, as more and more people are without work. Domestic violence, homelessness, and problems with education and medical care continue to devastate the lives of the poor, disabled and elderly. But our staff has been incredible – facing our challenges with passion and determination, and continuing to solve problems, one by one (and sometimes many by many) for very poor households in great need.”

Truancy Intervention Project

The Truancy Intervention Project, a collaboration between the New Britain School System and volunteer attorneys, focuses on keeping middle school children in school. Twenty-five volunteer attorneys attended training sessions, and currently, there are sixteen active cases. The project is funded primarily through a grant from the American Savings Bank Foundation which is supplemented by funding from the Connecticut Bar Foundation (administrative overhead), and support from Connecticut Legal Services (office space), Children's Law Center (administrative oversight), and the Connecticut Bar Association (marketing and graphic design). Peter Arakas chairs the committee.

Oral History of Connecticut Women in the Legal Profession Project

The Oral History of Connecticut Women in the Legal Profession Project is entering its tenth year. The committee is working with a documentary film maker to make the project's thirty-one interviews accessible to the public.

The Sixth John A. Speziale Alternative Dispute Resolution Symposium

“Where Have We Come? What Lies Ahead?”

Co-sponsored by Quinnipiac University School of Law

A group of national, regional, and statewide ADR experts examined critical ADR issues involving regulation, legislation, best practices, ethics, and areas of potential future growth. Breakout discussion topics included ethics, consumer matters, collaborative law, courts/personal injury, commercial, family, community, and education areas. The keynote speaker was Kenneth R. Feinberg of The Feinberg Group LLP, and the symposium was held in May at Quinnipiac University School of Law.
